Colonel Treize Khushrenada.
Founder of the Specials.

He is also an official of the mysterious Romefeller Foundation financially backed by royalty and aristocrats who place importance on tradition. With this strong backing, Treize has focused on the development of mobile suits.

The special mobile troops, known as the Specials, made great progress within the military of the United Earth Sphere Alliance in the expansion of armaments. They are a complete unit that not only supplies mobile suits to the Alliance but also started instructing the combat army corps.
Having them the right to act independently any time and at any battle they wish.
Their reputation on the battlefield is excellent...

However, there were many who disliked and distrusted the Specials.

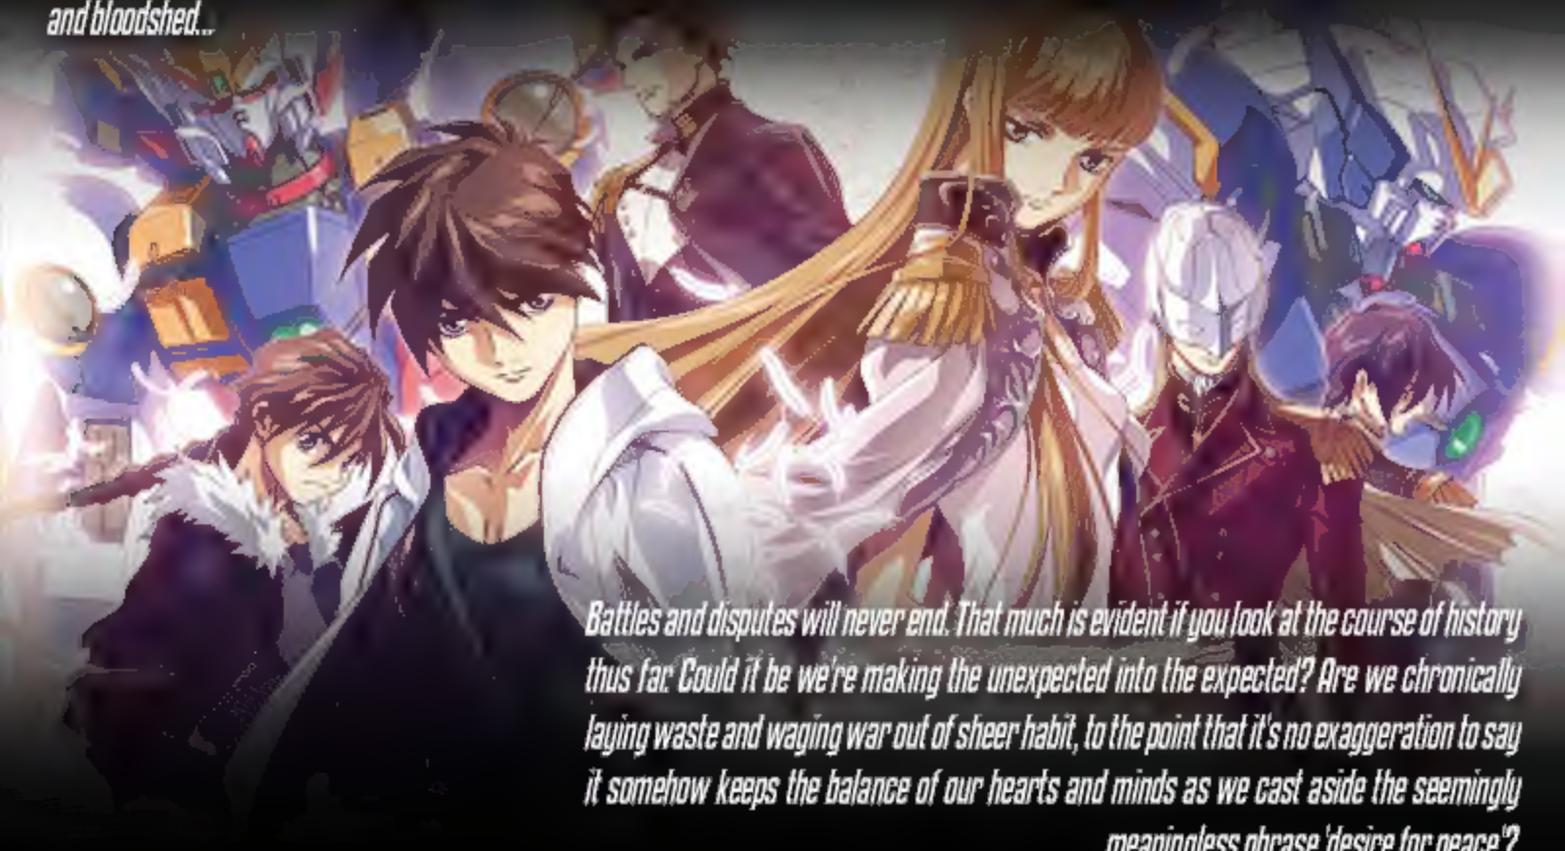
ENEMY ATTACK!!

A few of this era's leaders, serving their own conceited desire in the name of justice, brought about wars in every corner of the Earth Sphere. The almost meaningless contest for power ultimately forced a vast majority of the masses to suffer poverty, starvation, and bloodshed...



Battles and disputes will never end. That much is evident if you look at the course of history thus far. Could it be we're making the unexpected into the expected? Are we chronically laying waste and waging war out of sheer habit, to the point that it's no exaggeration to say it somehow keeps the balance of our hearts and minds as we cast aside the seemingly meaningless phrase 'desire for peace'?

Is a revolution what is needed?
